Anatomy of a Case: Westlaw

The Filings tab shows researchers the documents that were filed in the case.

The History tab shows researchers the prior and subsequent history of a case.

The Citing References tab lists all sources--including cases and secondary sources--that cite the case..

The Table of Authorities is a list of all the sources cited in the case.

The Negative Treatment tab shows researchers the negative direct history and cases that cite the case negatively.

TThe Cited With tab lists cases that are often cited alongside the case.

The Case Citation tells researchers how to look up the case or find it in a print reporter. Here it's 646 S.W.3d 498, which stands for page 498 of the 646th volume of the Southwestern Reporter Third.

A Docket Number is an independent number assigned to each case when it's filed; this number attaches to all filings and court documents while the case is before the court.

The Argued Date is the date oral arguments were heard before the court.

The Opinion Delivered Date is the date the opinion was delivered or published.

The Synopsis provides a brief summary of the facts, the nature of the claim, the procedural stages in the history of the case, and the decision by the court.

Anatomy of a Case: Westlaw

Headnotes give summaries of sub-issues discussed in a case. Researchers can use headnotes to find where that issue was discussed in the case and to find more cases on that issue.

