Anatomy of a Code: Lexis+

The Citing Decisions lists all the cases that cite the statute.

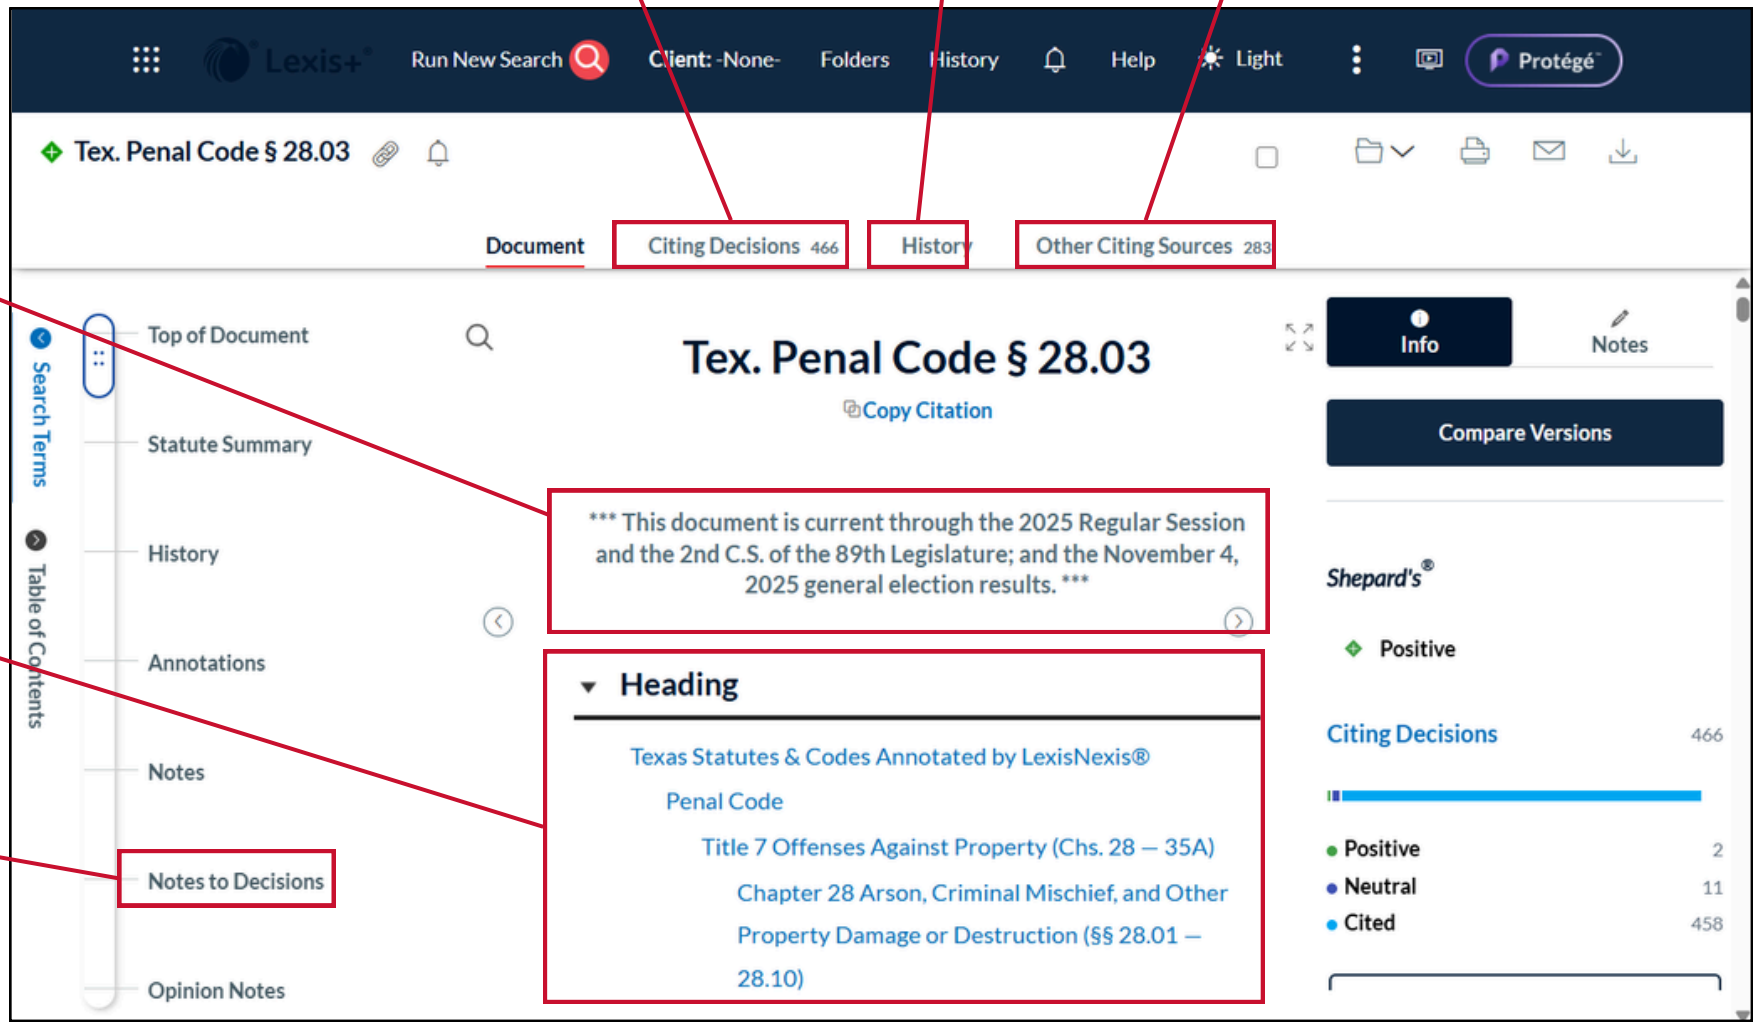

History includes information on earlier versions of the statute, including summaries of changes made by any amendments to the statute.

Other Citing Sources lists all the non-case sources that cite the statute.

Currentness tells you when Lexis last updated any changes to the statute made by the legislature into the database; typically, Lexis updates very regularly, so Lexis is usually current within the last week.

The Caption or Heading tells researchers where they're located in the code--title, subtitle, chapter, and individual section--so they can assess that they're in the appropriate place for their research issue.

The Notes to Decisions is a curated list of cases that interpret the statute's language, organized by important sub-issues related to the statute.

Anatomy of a Code: Lexis+

The Statutory History Line lets researchers know when the statute was originally enacted and whether it's ever been amended.
